“The culture we have tried to create at Kobre & Kim is one that encourages people to speak for themselves and to be vocal about their opinions. We know that the best ideas and strategies do not always come from the top down but from all directions. This is important because we are ultimately in the business of advocating for our client’s position.”

–Michael S. Kim, firm co-founder

Litigation Assistant Program

Our highly selective, program offers recent graduates hands-on experience supporting attorneys with essential casework. Litigation Assistants manage case files, assist with court filings, coordinate discovery materials, and help prepare for hearings and trials—all while gaining valuable training and exposure to complex litigation.

Litigation Assistant Program: Overview

Litigation Assistants commit to a minimum of two years, working closely with attorneys from case investigation through litigation. After the first year, they may advance to roles like Senior Litigation Assistant or Specialist, focusing on legal strategy and specific practice areas.

The program offers recent graduates hands-on legal experience, skill development, and a pathway to future leadership—whether in law or other industries. The program also offers opportunities for career growth, skill development, graduate school preparation, and additional perks such as social events, speaker series, and more.

Job Qualifications

Litigation Assistants are high-achieving graduates with strong academic records and excellent communication, organizational, and critical thinking skills. We welcome applicants from all majors and encourage those with diverse interests and business-level language skills to apply. Candidates must thrive in fast-paced environments and commit to a minimum two-year term.

Additional language skills that can be used in a business setting — Arabic, French, German, Hebrew, Italian, Korean, Cantonese, Mandarin, Portuguese, Russian and Spanish — are not required but strongly encouraged.
