Cross-Border Team Offers Strategies for U.S. Law Firms Facing Discovery Of Foreign Clients' Records

June 29, 2017

Publication: Law360

Law firms could be inadvertently exposing foreign clients' documents to U.S. third-party discovery by bringing them into the U.S. Steven Kobre and John Han dissect a recent decision that expands the categories of foreign clients' records that can be discovered directly from a U.S. law firm, and how firms can mitigate the third-party risk for handling foreign clients' records.
