

Global Government Enforcement Defense Team Offers Strategies on Filing Whistleblower Claims for Those Outside the U.S.

March 1, 2018

Publication: Bloomberg Law

Whistleblower activity is on the rise worldwide, and so is the potential for individuals to receive massive payouts for information leading to successful enforcement actions by U.S. regulators. Our cross-border government enforcement defense team — including Washington DC-based former U.S. Department of Justice prosecutors Eric Bruce and Wade Weems and litigator Fritz Scanlon, along with Shanghai-based lawyer Shaun Wu – offers insight on how employees who suspect wrongdoing can determine how to blow the whistle, identify and mitigate risks, and increase their chances of securing a reward, all while protecting anonymity and mitigating the risk of retaliation.

Read the Bloomberg Law article, "The Right Strategy Is Everything When It Comes to Filing Whistleblower Claims, Especially for Those Outside the U.S.," here.