Hong Kong-U.S. Team Analyzes the Rise in Cross-Territorial Government Enforcement Actions Between U.S. and China

June 2, 2017

Publication: Westlaw Journal

Commercial relationships between China and the United States continue to evolve and drive new enforcement priorities and investigative tactics on both sides of the world. New York and Hong Kong-based former U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission branch chief William F. McGovern, along with Hong Kong-based lawyers Shaun Z. Wu and Nan Wang, analyzes recent U.S. enforcement actions in China and implications for multinational companies in a recent Westlaw Journal article. The authors also explore what the extraterritorial reach means for U.S. companies subject to regulation by the Chinese government.
