

Insights

Jonathan Cogan, Tim Prudhoe, and John Couriel Explore How Oil and Gas Investors Can Protect Their Financial Interests in a Turbulent Market

August 1, 2015

Publication: Gas International

With the decline in global oil and gas prices creating tensions on commercial ventures in the industry, minority stakeholders often carry a substantial risk. In this article, Kobre & Kim lawyers Jonathan Cogan, Tim Prudhoe, and John Couriel discuss legal options and rights often available to minority partners in the face of declining oil and gas prices and how proactively exercising these rights can be vital to maximizing the recovery of invested monies and other assets.

Read the full article here.