

Insights

Kobre & Kim a Leader in the Rising Realm of International Litigations, The American Lawyer Reports

September 29, 2017

As the global economy becomes increasingly integrated, international litigations are on the rise, presenting opportunities for the unique law firms equipped to navigate the logistical and multijurisdictional challenges involved. Firm co-founders Michael Kim and Steven Kobre offer insight to The American Lawyer on what it takes to grow a law firm across continents, including navigating cultural barriers, building relationships with local law firms and judges, and creating a leadership structure that incentivizes cooperation that fosters global growth.

Read the article, “What It Takes to Dominate in the Elite Game of International Litigation,” here.