

Michael Kim and Daniel Lee Detail South Korean Extradition Laws for Global Investigations Review

June 14, 2021

Publication: Global Investigations Review

Writing in Global Investigations Review's "GIR Know How: Extradition" guide, Kobre & Kim's founding partner Michael Kim and Seoul-based lawyer Daniel Lee detail the current landscape and legal requirements for extradition from South Korea.

Co-authored with Seong-Jin Choi and Tak-Kyun Hong of Shin & Kim, the chapter goes into detail on the domestic laws and treaties that govern extradition requests made to the South Korean government. The authors look into the types of offenses for which extradition is allowed; the specific requirements and stages of a request; provisional arrest; the rights of the accused, including bail; the bars that can be raised to extradition; the presence or lack of political and judicial review; and the time limits and process of extradition.

Click here to read the full chapter, which is an extract from the 2021 edition of GIR's Extradition Know-how, first published in June 2021. The whole publication is available at <https://globalinvestigationsreview.com/insight/know-how/extradition>