

Insights

Vasu Muthyala Examines the New Government Enforcement Landscape for Financial Crime in the PRC

August 14, 2017

Publication: Trace International

Hong Kong-based former U.S. Department of Justice prosecutor Vasu Muthyala speaks with Trace International President Alexandra Wrage about fraud and corruption in the People's Republic of China (PRC), including the quickly evolving regulatory landscape and how PRC companies are becoming more accepting of anti-bribery measures and displaying an increased sophistication around FCPA compliance. Mr. Muthyala explains how multinational companies can navigate risks of doing business in the middle kingdom, and how it compares with other countries in the APAC region and the U.S.

The podcast, "Bribe, Swindle or Steal: Exploring the world of financial crime," can be accessed here.