Kobre & Kim won the dismissal of a putative U.S. federal securities class-action complaint against Rebekah Brooks, the former head of News International, arising out of the News of the World and The Sun's news gathering practices, including the much publicized phone-hacking allegations. The U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York found that the court did not have personal jurisdiction over Ms. Brooks and another defendant (NI Group) and that the plaintiffs otherwise failed to state a claim against all defendants, which included News Corp., its subsidiary, NI Group and other individual defendants.

Kobre & Kim's London and New York teams successfully negotiated a settlement agreement with UK-based Woodsford Litigation Funding Limited on behalf of Chevron Corporation. Pursuant to the terms of the settlement agreement, Woodsford agreed to withdraw all financial support related to litigation brought against Chevron in Ecuador and relinquish its interest in a US $9.5 billion judgment to Chevron.

Kobre & Kim's Miami team obtained a landmark acquittal on behalf of Raoul Weil, former head of UBS Wealth Management and the highest-ranking Swiss banker to stand trial in the U.S., on allegations that he conspired with wealthy Americans to hide US $20 billion in secret offshore accounts. Kobre & Kim was brought in as special litigation counsel for the trial in Florida, where the firm's aggressive cross-examinations of government witnesses and closing arguments played a key role in crippling the government's case.

Kobre & Kim's New York and Washington DC teams secured a court order in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, granting their contested application pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1782 to take discovery in connection with an alleged hacking and cyber corporate espionage scheme in aid of a US $1 billion commercial dispute currently being litigated in the Netherlands.

Kobre & Kim's New York and Washington DC teams obtained dismissal of its client Korea Advanced Institute of Technology, one of the top educational and research institutes in the Republic of Korea, from a civil action in the U.S. District Court for the District of New Jersey involving a partnership dispute over the development of mobile ship-docking technologies.

Kobre & Kim's New York team helped secure a noncustodial sentence for the former chief financial officer of DHB Industries Inc., n/k/a Point Blank Solutions Inc., a body armor supplier. After pleading guilty in 2007 to her role in an alleged US $200 million+ fraudulent scheme to inflate company earnings and profits, she had faced years in prison.

Kobre & Kim's New York team persuaded the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit to uphold a lower court's complete dismissal of a lawsuit against our client alleging violations of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) related to the sale and leaseback of commercial properties in Florida, Georgia, New York and Pennsylvania.

Kobre & Kim's New York and Washington DC teams persuaded the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York to explicitly recognize an agency's right to assert the bank examination and deliberative process privileges in cases alleging multibillion-dollar claims against the nation's top banks.

Kobre & Kim's New York and Washington DC teams persuade the U.S. Court of Appeals for the DC Circuit that the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) did not have subject-matter jurisdiction to bring a manipulation case against Brian Hunter, the former head of energy trading for US $9 billion hedge fund Amaranth Advisors LLC, who had traded only in the commodities derivative markets. This case marked the first-ever court challenge to the scope of the FERC's anti-manipulation rule.

Kobre & Kim's Miami team obtained dismissal of a civil asset forfeiture lawsuit in which the U.S. government sought to forfeit about US $11 million in U.S. bank accounts belonging to an Italian precious metals company on a claim that the company was involved in money laundering. Through a quick but rigorous investigation, Kobre & Kim convinced the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) that its lawsuit was unfounded and, as a result, the U.S. government voluntarily agreed to dismiss the complaint and unfreeze the company's bank accounts.
