Michael Ng Explores Cross-Border Internal Investigations in Asia at NAPABA Annual Convention

November 1, 2017

Michael Ng will lead a discussion on key considerations when conducting cross-border internal investigations at the National Asian Pacific American Bar Association (NAPABA) convention in Washington DC. The program will take place during the International Law Day Symposium on November 2.

The session, titled “Internal Investigations and the Global Enterprise: Cross-Border Information Gathering in Asia and Elsewhere,” will focus on how to effectively conduct internal investigations in different legal and cultural environments and how multinational businesses should manage information to protect confidentiality and privacy. The panel will also compare the laws governing internal investigations in Asia by region and address common issues that may arise.
