Cayman Islands-based litigator Rebecca Hume reviewed the most effective strategies for U.S. in-house counsel seeking to enforce or defend against high-value international judgments or arbitration awards. Adriana Riviere-Badell, who focuses her practice on international judgment enforcement and asset recovery, moderated the April 1 panel “You Can Run but You Can’t Hide: Asset Tracing and Asset Recovery Around the World.” Panelists discussed recent developments in cross-border asset tracing, recovery and enforcement that demystifies the process of tracking assets in historically secretive jurisdictions.
