Rebecca Hume and Andrew Stafford KC Discuss International Asset Recovery and Fraud Litigation

February 28, 2018

Rebecca Hume and Andrew Stafford KC will examine international judgment enforcement, asset recovery and fraud litigation on February 28 at KNect's "Asset Recovery: Fraud Litigation, Enforcement & Contentious Insolvency" conference.

Rebecca Hume, a Cayman-based insolvency litigator and a chair of this year's conference, will moderate a discussion on cross-border judgment enforcement, titled "Enforcement and Recognition – Global Perspectives." The panel will highlight the latest trends in the recognition, enforcement and execution of foreign judgments and the legal concerns that may be encountered during a global dispute. Ms. Hume will also lead panels on pre-judgment receiverships in international asset recovery, and the pros & cons of asset recovery via an insolvency process.

English barrister Andrew Stafford KC will explore the liabilities of auditors and advisors in global fraud disputes. The panel, "Finding a Deep Pockets Defendant After Fraud," will focus on the international approaches to litigation against service providers and other third parties following a fraud.
