Ross McLeod is a Cayman Islands attorney focused on complex, high-value cross-border disputes, typically involving a connection to one or more offshore jurisdictions. He focuses his practice on commercial litigation, fund disputes, restructuring and cross-border insolvency.

Before joining Kobre & Kim, Mr. McLeod practiced at Appleby in the Cayman Islands as a member of their dispute resolution department, as well as the London office of Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan UK LLP.

Before qualifying as a lawyer, Mr. McLeod commissioned from the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst and was a British Army officer for over 10 years, including on operations in Bosnia, Sierra Leone, Iraq, and Afghanistan.
